

Term 4 Best Bits Blog

Hello loyal followers!

We haven't seen you in a while. We know. We've been neglecting you... but what can we say? We're simply just extremely busy people of late.

To summarise Term 4, we:

- Met a man with only one arm
- Wrote detailed biographies for celebrities; and we're talking A-Listers here!
- Travelled back in time to 1945
- Used up all of Mrs Marsh's purple pens

You get the idea. Busy.

As you will know by now, it is a favourite past time of ours to share with you our favourite moments of the Term gone by. Whether it enthrals you or not; we intend to do it anyway!

In keeping with our theme of 'War Heroes' this term our teachers arranged for us to meet the inspiring triple amputee, Mark Ormrod. Mark came in to our school to give a motivational talk about his life, including the challenges he has faced with being a triple amputee.

During our English unit, we created our own biography based on an iconic person from history. The majority of us chose to write about people who were involved in World War Two such as; the famous German leader, Adolf Hitler, Anne Frank and Joseph Stalin. A number of us decided to research and focus on the late Nelson Mandela - highlighting his importance during the apartheid era in South Africa.

Further highlights of Term 4 have been both World Book Day and our Science days in March. During WBD, we were tasked with dressing up as book characters and each class were given a continent to represent - ours being Central America. We designed our door in a 'Day of the Dead' theme which looked a little creepy but great!

Only two more terms of our ECS journey left to go - we can't wait for more jam-packed learning and plenty of fun!
